CLASS POEM.

EMMA M. SQUIRES.

Hail, classmates, at this longed-for hour ;
Past are the conflicts, joy rules the present,
Trials drear and dark have lost their power,
And our hopes approach their fulfillment.
Patient endeavor has claimed our regard,
At last this has brought us its rich reward.

Ne'er to be forgotten are the years
In which we've struggled, in which we've striven,
Pressing on midst failures, doubts and fears ;
By contests real and many driven
To meet life's problems, this truth discover,
"How well, not how much" is work's measure.

Good was the past, good the present day,
Be hopeful then, though sweet ties we sever,
And our farewells to each other say ;
"For the future" we've labored ever.
Forth to the conflict, answer duty's call,
Fear not the battle, God's over all.

Hail, once more, hail, on this last fair day,
Let all remember, we stand united,
One in purpose and true sympathy,
To one cause our hearts are all plighted,
There's power in union, there's inspiration,
Then in each other we'll e'er find strength.
